

ABSTRACT

A novel cold plate may include one or more of the following features: radial flow paths, and / or an impingement point for cooling fluid in the cold plate located at a position corresponding to an expected relatively hotter spot of a heat source.